PROJECT DESCRIPTION

The Integrated Wellness Center will be the new home for William & Mary's Office of Health Promotion, Counseling Center, Health Center, Campus Recreation's wellness programming and the Center for Mindfulness and Authentic Excellence. The center is named for two philanthropist alumni who are supporters of the campus' recreation programs and facilities. The space will provide a centralized place for the William and Mary community's wellness needs through services and workshops. All of the health- and wellness-based programming for students will be housed for the first time under one roof.

The wellness center is intended to aid students in their health and well-being during and after their time on campus and help students integrate a wide range of wellness practices into their daily lives. The center will offer workshops in individual reflection and yoga, and it will include rooms for meditation and massage. The Student Health Center, which offers primary-care services, also will move into the new facility.
